

67 Percent Of Americans Say American Judges Don't Follow The Law. Michigan Judges Are A Perfect Example Why People Don't Trust The Judicial System

Oakland County Judge Martha Anderson in Oakland County, Michigan

Anyone involved in foreclosure defense will agree with this new poll released last week from Rasmussen. It basically says the majority of Americans don't trust judges who sit on the bench. In other words, Americans have lost faith in the people who sit on the bench.

Rasmussen Report's national telephone survey of 1000 people conducted November 1-2, 2013 finds that 39% of Likely U.S. Voters think most judges in their rulings try to make new law they like better. Only 33% believe most judges in their rulings follow the letter of the law. Nearly as many (28%) are not sure which is the case. (To see survey question wording, click here.)

Michigan Judges Are An Example Of Why People Don't Trust American Judges

Oakland County Circuit Judge Martha Anderson in Oakland County Michigan is a perfect example of this.

Most of you remember her idiotic ruling she made against my late client, Lynne Lucas who fought like hell to save her house as she was dying of cancer two years ago. Her verdict was essentially nothing more than a script that was prepared well in advance. Anderson refused to listen to a key pieces of evidence that would have destroyed any claim Bank of America was attempting to make and would have exposed blatant attorney misconduct from Tim Myers at Orlans Associates and the law firm representing Bank of America.

This kind of behavior from a judge isn't all that surprising since Judge Anderson is no stranger to attorney misconduct or thinking that the law doesn't pertain to her or her family.

Did Judge Anderson Use Her Judicial Influence To Get A Ruling For Her Husband With A Troubled Legal Past?

In 2008, Martha Anderson attempted to use her judicial influence to get her husband elect to the bench in Oakland County. However, David Anderson had a dirty secret. On April 25, 1998, her husband, David C. Anderson had his law license suspended for 30 days because he failed to correct false statements made by a witness for his client that he knew were false. David Anderson told the Detroit News in 2008:

In the Fall of 1995, I was defending an insurance company regarding an arson claim. During the course of the litigation, a defense witness gave testimony which I did not know or believe to be incorrect information. When this issue was brought to my attention, I attempted to correct same within thirty (30) days of learning of the problem. The Grievance Panel did not believe my corrective actions were fast enough or broad enough in scope. The grievance filed against me had nothing to do with any allegations of moral turpitude, dishonesty, fraud, or criminal wrongdoing.

However, David Anderson may spin it. His sister Diane was a bit more direct in her description of the event. She referred to it as "aiding and abetting the fraud of one of the insurance companies he represents"

Judge Martha Anderson Is A Reason Why People Don't Trust American Judges

Martha Anderson was assigned to the Family Division after winning her seat on the bench in 2002. She soon became a very controversial judge.

Google has nearly four pages of websites created by irate parents, custodians, and guardians trashing her and her inept judicial skills. It's worth checking out especially if you're an Oakland County taxpayer and voter.

Judge Anderson was later accused by her sister-in-law Diane Anderson of using undue influence as a judge to have now retired Chief Judge Barry Grant issue an ex-parte order declaring David and Diane's mother, Jewell incompetent. Thus, making David her guardian.

Court Rips Oakland County Judge Who Sent Man To Prison For Not Paying

March 15, 2017 at 4:40 pm

PONTIAC (AP) – The Michigan appeals court is criticizing an Oakland County judge for sending a 70-year-old man to prison after he insisted he was too poor to make consistent payments to a crime victim.

In a 2-1 decision, the court said Judge Martha Anderson failed a key step: She yanked Ghazi Marji's probation and sent him to prison in 2015 without trying to confirm that he was truthful about his weak finances.

Marji, a former trucker, was 70 at the time.

The appeals court says the prosecutor and probation department never presented firm facts about Marji's assets. Judge Elizabeth Gleicher says prosecutors need more than "smoke and mirrors" to lock up someone.
