

at a very basic level . . .

Organizational excellence is about using the factors of production to accomplish results

. . . and it is much more than that

Organizational Attributes

In addition to all of the factors of production we need to organize and behave in certain ways to leverage our talents, maximize our potential, and work closely together to serve our clients. This is all about that magical “synergy” element.