The Cooma Post Office 116-128 Sharp Street Cooma NSW, was designed by Colonial Architect James Barnet and built by John Harris, is a significant example of the Victorian Mannerist style. It was established in 1872 and is part of a collection of important public buildings designed by Barnett. The post office is characterized by its ornate Italianate style and features an impressive collection of public buildings designed by Barnett.

The post office has played a crucial role in the postal system of Australia, serving as a vital link between the post office, train stations, and local delivery routes. It was essential for sorting and transporting mail, ensuring that letters and packages reached their destinations promptly.
